WE CHANGE LIVES: COMMENTS FROM OUR CUSTOMERS

“I want you to know how much I love the Orange County Library System personnel, classes, Lynda online, new location at Chickasaw, convenience of MAYL and downloadable everything! With everything going on in today’s world, the library is a blessing to the community, a haven of good works, endless choices of entertainment and enjoyment. ... OCLS does a fantastic job and I want to give you a great big thank you!”

-Karen Anderson

“The Prime Time Reading Program has opened the door for my family to discuss and use critical thinking when reading a book and in day-to-day situations. All the staff members were very knowledgeable, patient and cared about how the children in our community develop to lead future generations. I definitely recommend this program to families and I hope it continues to expand across our nation, giving our children the opportunity to learn from one another. Thank you.”

-Linette G.

“My husband and I were at this Library taking Citizenship classes and now we are two new American citizens! We are happy and proud, especially because of your Library.”

-Mrs. Pacheco

“Customer service and classes are great and have helped me in finding a job and material in many ways. Keep up the great service.”

-Betsy Batista
Service to the community is at the heart of everything a library does, and as President of the Board of Trustees for the Orange County Library System, I’m proud to say that our library system is second to none when it comes to providing unique and innovative library service. We’re always looking at ways we can improve the lives of Orange County residents, and sometimes that means thinking creatively about what it means to be a library in our modern world. In the past fiscal year, for instance, we’ve introduced some new and exciting programs that provide vital resources to people who need them most.

This year, we launched Social Worker @ the Library, which brings a licensed social worker on site at five library locations to help customers navigate the complicated network of social services and government programs. We also partnered with Orange County Public Schools to offer Virtual Library Card to every student in the school system - the service gives students access to digital library resources using just a student ID number and a PIN.

We also brought back popular offerings like Summer BreakSpot, which delivers free lunches to children at library branches all summer long, and we held our biggest and most exciting Summer Reading Program yet, which offered kids opportunities to learn about everything from basic business skills to coding to sewing.

A well-rounded library system is a source of inspiration and strength for the community it serves, which is why we take library service so seriously. I think I can speak for everyone at the Orange County Library System when I say that we work hard to build a stronger community and a better world.

Lisa Franchina
President
Board of Trustees
When people ask us what we do at the Orange County Library System, we like to tell them that we don’t just give people books or offer computer classes—we change lives. If that seems like a stretch, take a look at the wealth of services, classes, and learning opportunities we offer every day at 16 locations across the county, to people from all walks of life. Whether we’re helping recent evacuees from Puerto Rico perfect their English-language skills so they can enter the Central Florida job market, or giving parents opportunities to put down their cell phones and spend quality time connecting with their kids at a library program, our goal is the same: To offer people the chance to discover new things that can improve their lives and the lives of those around them.

This year, our libraries offered so many new and exciting opportunities to our community. We launched virtual reality classes at the Melrose Center, which give aspiring game designers a chance to dabble with augmented reality. We introduced the Virtual Library Card to students in Orange County Public Schools, giving every student in the school district easy access to important learning resources available through the library’s website. We gave the community a space to process the year that has passed since the tragic shooting at Pulse nightclub, which took 49 lives and tore a hole in the fabric of this community. And every single day, we looked for ways we could do more to make a meaningful impact on our world.

We’re proud of the work we do here. We want our libraries to be the source of inspiration and a path to a better future for everybody who walks through our doors.

On August 21, 2017, the nation experienced a historic moment when a solar eclipse that was visible throughout the entire continental United States briefly turned daylight into twilight. Thanks to a generous donation from STAR_Net, the library received solar viewing glasses to distribute to customers so they could safely view the spectacle. Our branches distributed the glasses at programs where adults and children learned more about the eclipse, then gathered outside to watch it together.
Thanks to a Mayor’s Matching Grant from the city of Orlando, the Orlando Public Library was able to expand its Sewing Studio, which now features sergers, large cutting tables and computer embroidery machines. The system’s sewing programs have also been expanded to offer teen camps at the Washington Park Branch, which will continue through summer 2018. The curriculum continues to grow and expand based on customer feedback. In early 2017, we also added fiber arts classes, including knitting, crochet and weaving, many of which are now offered at branches as well as the Orlando Public Library.
The Dorothy Lumley Melrose Center for Technology, Innovation and Creativity introduced people to another dimension with the introduction of Virtual Reality classes and experiences in 2017. Throughout the year, the center offered introductory classes for the technology in the Simulator Lab, which now features VR videos playing on the projection screens on the back wall to entice members to inquire about immersive technology. In August, the Melrose Center also premiered an open lab session where people can ask questions about game design and virtual reality, which offer game designers a development and testing environment for members creating their own games. Melrose staff have exhibited the VR game experiences at the center’s two big events, Technoween and the Melrose Creative Expo, as well as at offsite events, including Otronicon and Community Connections Day at the Orlando Science Center, Maker Faire Orlando and Orlando IX, a conference focusing on emerging markets for virtual reality, 360 video and augmented reality.
Koo Koo Kanga Roo Kicked off the 2017 Kids Summer Reading Program with live concerts at the Orlando Public Library and the Chickasaw Branch on June 3. This year’s Summer Reading Program was the biggest yet, with attendance of more than 100,000 kids, adults and teens at events and programs held at all 16 branches.
During the week of June 12, 2017, the Orange County Library System joined Orlando in reflecting on the year that had passed since the Pulse shooting. Customers were invited to celebrate diversity, support the community and consider how Pulse had changed them. In total, almost 1,000 people attended Pulse Remembered events at four library locations. Highlights from the week included a Pulse Remembrance Through Music and Poetry at the Orlando Public Library, in which local musicians and spoken-word artists performed pieces about Pulse; Love YA!, a celebration of diversity in young adult literature featuring authors Alex Sanches, Jenny Torres Sanchez and Lauren Gibaldi; and Drag Queen Storytime, at which local entertainer Miss Sammy and RuPaul’s Drag Race contestant Ben De La Crème read stories about tolerance and acceptance to an audience of more than 300 people. The week of Pulse Remembered events drew to a close on Thursday, June 15 with an opening reception for an art show called What Has Changed? Curated by art store Sam Flax of Orlando, the show featured work from 80 different artists that addressed how Pulse changed the community. In attendance were the friends and families of the victims of the Pulse shooting, first responders and representatives from local LGBTQ organizations.
SUMMER BREAKSPOT

Orange County Library System partnered with Orange County Public Schools to host Summer BreakSpot at five library locations during Summer Reading Program. A lot of parents rely on school lunches to keep their families fed, and Summer BreakSpot fills the summertime nutrition gap by serving free lunches to anyone 18 and younger. After receiving their lunches, kids are able go inside the library to eat and participate in Summer Reading Program activities. This year Summer BreakSpot served more than 29,000 lunches at our libraries. We look forward to working with OCPS in 2018 to feed many more minds and bodies.

STORYTIME FOR GROWNUPS

Storytimes are a staple library offering for children, but there’s no reason grownups can’t enjoy storytime, too. Starting in the summer of 2017, the Library’s storytellers introduced Storytime for Grownups at branches across the system, sharing folk tales, historic stories and real-life experiences for an adult crowd.
The Orange County Library System had the honor of being selected as one of the Orlando Sentinel’s Top 100 Companies. This honor is given to companies who are considered one of the best places to work in Central Florida, and the Library is proud to be in such good company.

The Edgewater Branch celebrated its 20th anniversary in August. The branch has been a pillar of support for the community surrounding the Lee Road and Edgewater Drive area since 1997. A celebration featuring live music, a children’s talent show, food and giveaways marked the occasion.
SOCIAL WORKER

In May, the library hired a social worker, to meet with people who need help navigating social services. The effort was funded under the provisions of the Library Service and Technology Act through the Institute of Museum and Library Services, administered by the Florida Department of State, State Library and Archives of Florida. Andre Morris, MSW, now travels between six library locations to meet with customers who need his help.
On June 24, the Orlando Public Library was transformed into the universe of Harry Potter for the first-ever Potterversary event, which celebrated the 20th anniversary of the publication of the first book in the Harry Potter series. Different departments recreated scenes from the books, including Hogsmeade, Diagon Alley, the Daily Prophet office and more. More than 800 people showed up to participate in day’s activities, many of them dressed in their best Harry Potter cosplay.
