Saturday, July 28, 2 p.m.
Whether you are writing about a street fight, an explosion in the middle of a war-torn village, hand-to-hand combat or a mind-numbing rock climb with no hope of survival, how do you add life and depth to action scenes? How do you transport the reader into the scene as one of your characters? The possibilities are endless, but you must fit your characters and the stories. Author and martial arts instructor L.E. Perez will show you how to bring your action scenes to life!

Southeast Book Club
Southeast Branch
Monday, July 9, 6:30 p.m.
Join the Southeast Book Club to discuss Landline by New York Times’ best-selling author Rainbow Rowell. This novel follows Georgie and her husband, Neal, as they try to repair their relationship. It’s almost as if they can start over as Georgie gets a chance to communicate with Neal in the past.

Hiawassee Book Club
Hiawassee Branch
Monday, July 16, 6:30–8 p.m.
The July selection is Half Broke Horses by Jeannette Walls. Based on the life of the author’s grandmother, Lily Casey Smith, who learned to break horses in childhood, journeyed 500 miles as a teen to become a teacher and operated a vast ranch in Arizona with her husband while raising two children – surviving tornadoes, droughts, floods, the Great Depression and the most heartbreaking personal tragedy.

Alafaya Book Club
Alafaya Branch
Wednesday, July 18, 7 p.m.
The Alafaya Book Club’s July selection is Silas Marnier by George Eliot. Betrayed by a friend, Silas Marnier secludes himself with his work and his wealth until an orphaned girl interrupts his bitter solitude. Together they find trust and friendship and forge a familial bond.

Southwest Book Club
Southwest Branch
Tuesday, July 24, 7–8:45 p.m.
Discuss this month’s selection Before the Fall by Noah Hawley. When a small plane carrying wealthy passengers crashes into the ocean, a 4-year-old boy and a down-on-his-luck painter are the tragedy’s only survivors. Odd coincidences surrounding the crash point to a possible conspiracy. Winner of the 2017 Edgar Award for Best Novel. Ages 18 and up.
